

DISPUTE OF FOREIGN INVESTMENT
IN INTERNATIONAL LAW – THE CONCEPT
AND MEANS FOR SOLVING USING SPECIFIC JURISDICTION

*Cristina Elena CÂNDEA**

Abstract

The dispute in international law on investment means any misunderstanding or disagreement on a law issue or international fact, notified between two or more foreign investors or between a Contracting State (or a particular local authority or an organism that is dependent on it [1]) and the person of another Contracting State, that are directly related to an investment. Cooperation and collaboration were the main features of the area for many years and we must hope that it will continue to operate in the same manner and in close touch with both arbitration and other alternative dispute resolution methods: mutual consultations, conciliation, mediation, ombudsmen, etc. The current economic crisis is likely to force investors to find alternative methods of dispute resolution and on long-term, will lead to change mentality. Lawyers role is very important, to be based in their profession, on both strong knowledge of private international law, and the knowledge of public international law, because the public international law owns a major role in globalization of the methods of dispute settlement, in international law of foreign investment, solving that, before anything should be done expeditiously.

Key words: methods of dispute settlement, foreign investment disputes, state, foreign investment, arbitration, mediation, public international law, international law of foreign investment.
